The Zika and HINI - Nothing Controversial Here, Move On

In my article published in July last year entitled ‘Why Does Pentagon Need Laboratories in Ukraine?’ I wrote: ‘The next stage of development of Ukrainian democracy might be an accidental outbreak of a virus.’

And here we go: ‘More than 20 Ukrainian soldiers have died and over 200 soldiers are hospitalized in a short period of time because of a new and deadly virus which is immune to all medicines. Donetsk People's Republic intelligence has reported that Californian Flu is leaked from the same place where the research on this virus has been carried out. The laboratory is located near the city of Kharkov and its base for the US military experts. The information about a threatening epidemic is announced by the Vice-Commander of the Donetsk Army, Eduard Basurin.

In Ukraine, a few dozens of people have already died and the virus has arrived in Poland. However here it is treated as something which you normally see in January and February. Zika virus is also such an accidental infection. "I am now declaring that the recent cluster of microcephaly and other neurological abnormalities reported in Latin America following a similar cluster in French Polynesia in 2014 constitutes a public health emergency of international concern," the WHO Director-General - Margaret Chan said on Monday.

All that seems to be a little more complicated.

We have got many different points of view on the matter. They must be presented for the better understanding of the subject. As Jon Rappoport informs us in an interview for Infowars. ‘Brazil again has tested cases of microcephaly and in only six cases out of 270 found Zika virus. According to my information shows that each year we have to deal with thousands of cases of microcephaly 25,000 cases in the US alone.’

On the other hand, as we read on trinfinity8.com ‘In late 2014, the Brazilian minister of health announced that a new Tdap shot would be mandatory for all expectant mothers starting in 2015. Since it’s mandatory, mothers with birth defect babies received this newly formulated vaccine while pregnant. The timeliness of the Tdap vaccine and the sudden rise in birth defects is more than just a little coincidental. The consequences of this untested vaccine is being swept under the rug. Which brings us once again to Bill Gates, the King of Eugenics and Vaccines.

In 2015 the Vanderbilt Vaccine Research Program, received a $307,000 grant from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation to study the immune responses of pregnant women who receive the Tdap (reduced-dose acellular pertussis vaccines combined with tetanus and diphtheria toxoids) vaccine. One cannot find the raw results.

Is it any wonder there was a rush to place the birth defect epidemic blame elsewhere? The fact that Brazil subjected its pregnant women to such a mandatory untested vaccine is genocidal, and now they know it. They bought the kool-aid without doing the precautionary research. Or perhaps they received enough money to look the other way. Consequently, the United States is now pushing to develop a vaccine for the Zika virus. Haven’t we been down this road before with mainstream media’s Ebola scares and the predictable rush to capitalize on a lucrative vaccine for all those in fear for their life (which they already had waiting in the wings)’
Another interesting fact is that according to the portal prisonplanet - the cases of microcephaly happen just in the area where the GMO mosquitoes have been released by Oxitec company. Oxitec as we learn from this document is also linked to Bill Gates.

‘In 2005 Ruscoe joined the Executive and Scientific Committees of the Innovative Vector Control Consortium (IVCC) to develop commercial partnerships and apply grants (including $50m from Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation) to discover and deliver new chemical products and information systems for elimination of insect vectors of malaria and dengue. Oxitec obtained its consortium funding from the Grand Challenges in Global Health, led by the Gates Foundation, in 2005. The IVCC is also funding Syngenta to develop new insecticides for malaria mosquito control.’ All this immediately made Bill Gates the target of public odium despite his philanthropic endeavors around the world. When it comes to the genetically modified mosquitoes, the New York Times quoted him in these words: “When it comes to killing humans, no other animal even comes close,”.

As we learn from the Business Insider, ‘Bill Gates posted the graphic below to his blog on April 25. It shows how many people are killed by different species of animals every year. The big red block at the bottom might surprise you.’ “The number of mosquito-caused deaths really is a mind-blowing thing. Other than humans killing humans during periods of war, most years, the mosquito wins,” the Mosquito Week trailer says.’

In this interview Bill Gates in turn expressed his concern about the plague that according to him, can fall upon us even during his lifetime. In this video, JAMES CORBETT tells us that as a result of the rejection of vaccine programs by some Third World countries, the ‘mosquito vaccine’ program sponsored by Gates will provide the vaccine for the population even without the consent of the concerned government. Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation awarded 100,000 dollars each on Wednesday to scientists in 22 countries including funding for a Japanese proposal to turn mosquitos into “flying syringes” delivering vaccines. – as we read on the Infowars page.

In this video, Gates says that we can ‘make an incredible change for the better and give the world a chance' if we apply specific 'innovation'.

These innovations include the vaccine. According to Bill Gates the benefits of the vaccine are as follows: improving health, reducing diseases among children by half and reducing population growth. One commentator under the video asked the question which might be bothering some of you as well.

How does making people healthy reduce population? The answer: If they are never born .... they can't die.

If I understood Gates and his wife Melinda correctly, the more developed a society is, the fewer children are born. The whole effort of the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation is put into giving the people living in Third World countries the opportunity to decide how many children to have. According to them, due to being more evolved socially, the number of children will be lower as it was previously the case in Europe. Thanks to these activities Gates wants to reduce the population by 10-15% - if, as he says, we can do 'a really good job'. So if I understand Bill Gates well: reducing the population by 10 to 15% is expected by the fact that people living a higher quality of life will not want to have so many children.

I understand that with vaccines the risk of falling children ill and their potential death rate will be lowered which will result in the increase of human welfare and thus decreasing the number of births which in turn will lead to reducing the population by 10 - 15%?

Melinda’s words are quite significant here: ‘There is global movement waiting to happen and ready to get behind this totally not controversial idea’ (birth control).

‘I think goal here is really clear: universal access to birth control that women want and for that to happen rich and poor government must made contraception a total priority’, Melinda Gates said that during her lecture at TED in 2012. The lecture was titled ‘Let's put birth control back on the agenda’. Bill Gates in his efforts to distribute vaccines says what motivates him is that the Third World countries do not have enough food and jobs for so many people - thus explains his charity. However, similar concerns are also directed by him towards more developed countries.

‘Software substitution, whether it’s for drivers or waiters or nurses ... it’s progressing. ... Technology over time will reduce demand for jobs, particularly at the lower end of skill set. ... 20 years from now, labor demand for lots of skill sets will be substantially lower. I don’t think people have that in their mental model.’ - Bill Gates said that at Washington, D.C., economic think tank The American Enterprise Institute. Taking these tendencies into account, will any countries other than the Third World nations be able to count on some help from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation with overcoming these challenges?
